Don Raycraft : Country and Folk Antiques (Schiffer Military/Aviation History) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Country and Folk Antiques (Schiffer Military/Aviation History):

According to Don Raycraft, this is the book he was looking for in 1965. He couldn't find it, so, thirty years later, he and Carol wrote it. With photos gathered over the span of one year and from Maine to California, they have gathered wonderful examples of country and folk antiques that are available to collectors. Illustrated with over 540 color photographs, the book is informative and fun, and will move the reader to a new level of awareness about the vast treasure trove of antiques still waiting to be discovered. A price guide is included.

About the Author Over the past twenty-five years, Don and Carol Raycraft have written more than forty books that deal with all aspects of Americana. Their personal collecting interest range from cast iron wind mill weights to painted furniture. They reside in Illinois.
