By J. Arena The gowns are gorgeous, the First Ladies are beautiful, and this is a wonderful opportunity for play that just might be followed up by your child's increased fascination with the subject matter. (Let's read about history!) The color and detail of the designs here are so wonderful, that this would make a wonderful addition to an adult's collection for reference or play. (Yes! We do need to play!)

Michelle Obama wore a silk chiffon gown to the Inaugural Ball. Jackie Kennedy selected Oleg Cassini to create her wardrobe. "Reagan Red" was Nancy Reagan's favorite color, and Hillary Clinton was partial to pantsuits. Tom Tierney celebrates more than a half century of lovely First Ladies and their glamorous apparel in this lavish paper doll collection. Ten dolls and 32 costumes — including inaugural gowns, classic day wear, and casual outfits — spotlight the most stylish women to ever grace the White House. Descriptive notes accompany the dolls and their clothing.
