A interesting guide to English Bookbinding. 100 bindings with commentary by an expert Good BW illustrations By Dr Howard Nixon was one of the leading British scholars on Bookbinding of his generation. The was head of Rare Books at the British Library up to the time of his retirement His books related to bookbinding are highly prized and worth getting if and when you can afford them. A few of his books are very expensive This current book contains 100 select English Bindings They had been published in the Book Collector magazine over Some 25 years and were given more permanent form in this excellent book. The first bindings are by the Caxton Binder 1480-1490. The last is a Cosway Binding of 1928. In this work Nixon aimed to Only discuss bindings not published in book form before Aim for a reasonable coverage of all patriots of bookbinding (some area had been well covered in early major works on English Bookbinding). The earliest binding is on the Stonyhurst St. Cuthbert's Gospels -- this is not included as it and a number of important bindings have been previously published He aimed to add at least one new fact on each binding A number of bindings were made for Royalty or Rulers including Henry VIII, Edward VI , Queen Mary along with Elizabeth I and later Oliver Cromwell Charles II and George III Other binding were made for important nobles and also book collectors Archbishop Parker, Lord Burghley, and Lord Herbert feature as does Samuel Peyps. Later there is a binding for the famous Harleian Library One meets a range of bookbinders-- some we know about while others are known to us buy those whose book they bound The format is comment on the Left side of the page with notes where needed and a well reproduced full page BW illustration on the

RightI tend to dip into it and look at the Bindings and read the commentary on selected bindingsIf you are interested in English bookbindings then it is worth considering this bookIt covers a broad range of English Bindings from about 1500-1930Howard Nixon was one of the leading scholars of his day and is still highly regarded as can be seen by the prices for some of his booksI think the New copy at nearly $4,900 is clearly overpriced. However every bookseller is free to offer his books at whatever price he chooses and every buyer is free to pay whatever price he wishes
