Steve Alexander : G.A. Custer to the Little Big Horn before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised G.A. Custer to the Little Big Horn:

There exists a few minor errors that a proofreader should have corrected, but they probably were caught up in the cavalry charge pace of Alexander's writing style. I doubt few other men than the book's author have travelled so far and as long in the historical Custer's boots. Steve Alexander is passionately pro-Custer, but also is remarkably open to the native-american point of view. To serious Custer students, it is also both charming and revealing to read in this book, what Alexander chooses about his hero to include or leave out. After over some forty years of reading about Custer and other cavalrymen, going over the battle terrain and having experience that comes from owning and working with horses, I have found some of my own ideas about LBH have proven likely correct in recent years. No doubt, Alexander must have speculations of his own. Alexander has nicely summed up the facts here, but he can still be of considerable value to the literary world. A first class historical fiction writer could yet compose the ultimate Custer book, if he had Alexander riding at his side, and giving true to life insights into Custer's psyche and thinking processes. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. It is a good book to learn a short history of Custer and ...By Dale G.Niewoehner Steve had dedicated his life to the history of General George A. Custer. He has given freely to the Fort Abraham Lincoln Foundation in many appearances over the years. The book tells a history of this controversial General. It is a good book to learn a short history of Custer and the period in our nation's history. I am honored to be his friend and have shared many a good conversation at the Fort. He is GENERAL CUSTER. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Very nice book, very satisfied , my pictures, a couple I haven't seen before.. I would like to meet him and his wife, By Roger Ross I have a couple of dozens books of Custer and the Little Big Horn, be I am gald I did get this book too.. Very informative. One picture I do question But I reall like this book.

This book by renowned historian Mr. Steve Alexander, traces the life and deeds of George Armstrong Custer from his beginnings to his famous Last Stand and death on June 25th, 1876 near the Little Big Horn River in southeastern Montana Territory. Mr. Alexander's "G.A. Custer to the Little Big Horn" is an in-depth approach to the always controversial figure and a reflection on the man, his time and the myth through exhaustive research and understanding gained from a whole life of study and dedication. Brilliant text and more than 200 period photographs and full color pictures - many of them designed specifically for this book - are interwoven here to render a distinctive work which stands out among the myriad of books already published on the famous encounter between Custer's 7th Cavalry and the Lakota and Northern Cheyenne, led by Sitting Bull. The book also includes a prologue by Dr. Joseph Medicine Crow, last War Chief of the Crow tribe, and an impressive color fold-out map with clear details of the famous battle. Proclaimed the "Foremost Custer Living Historian" by the United States Congress, Steve Alexander has been acknowledged by both the Michigan and Ohio Senates for his lifetime work and portrayal of America's most controversial military leader. Steve has appeared in over three dozen docudramas as the General, most recent being the Discovery Times: Only in America. His work for the History Channel includes "Command Decisions", "Trail with General Custer" and the "Little Big Horn - The Untold Story." Both television documentaries and the television portrayals "Biography of Custer" and Bill Kurtis' "Betrayal at Little Big Horn" in the "New Explorers" series cast Steve Alexander as General Custer again and received awards for the top historical presentations in 1998 1999. He and his wife Sandy now reside in the Bacon-Custer home in Monroe, Michigan, the General's adopted hometown, which they are in the process of restoring. Well-known to the people of Nebraska, Kansas, and South Dakota, Steve is also responsible for the text of the new historical marker in Hunterstown, PA and annually represents General Custer at Gettysburg, Appomattox and other Civil War events. He was honored to represent the state of North Dakota during the 2005 Presidential Inaugural Parade in Washington D. C. Instrumental in reestablishing the Annual Custer's Last Stand Reenactment in Hardin, Montana, he now participates in the Real Bird Reenactment of the Little Big Horn on the Original Battlefield each year, during the battle's anniversary weekend. Steve has been the recipient of the Custer Battlefield Historical and Museum Association's Editor's Choice Award and duly honored by Joe Medicine Crow, Tribal Historian bestowing the Crow Indian name Ika' Dieux' Daka', "Son of the Morning Star" a name previously held by only one man: George Armstrong Custer.
